TABLE OF APPEALS OF TERMINATION OF PARENTAL RIGHTS CASES TO THE SUPREME COURT OF VIRGINIA AND THE COURT OF APPEALS OF VIRGINIA: CASES DISPOSED FROM JANUARY 1, 1996 THROUGH MAY 20, 2025

This document was prepared under the aegis of the Court Improvement Program (CIP), located in the Office of the Executive Secretary of the Supreme Court of Virginia. CIP is not involved in any way in the appellate process of the Court. This document has neither been discussed with nor reviewed by any justice of the Supreme Court or judge of the Court of Appeals, nor any member of their staffs.

The table provides a list of termination of parental rights cases appealed to the Supreme Court of Virginia and the Court of Appeals of Virginia from January 1, 1996 through May 20, 2025, and decided by opinion. The editors of this document arranged the cases into fourteen categories based on their characterization of the legal and factual issues involved. It is possible for a case to have implicated more than one issue or factor bearing on the termination of parental rights (e.g., incarceration of the parent, domestic violence, mental illness, etc.); however, rarely will a case appear under more than one category heading, as determined by the editors.

Since this list is intended to be exhaustive for the Court of Appeals, it includes both the published and unpublished opinions of the Court of Appeals for this timeperiod. Due to space limitations, notes are only provided on published opinions. Full text unpublished opinions can be accessed by clicking on the hyperlinked case name in the left-hand column.

Jordan Heath Joyce v. Botetourt Co. DSS; 0736-22-3	Reversed, vacated, and remanded (Published opinion by Judge Robert J. Humphreys) 11-9-22 Note: This is not about procedural errors by the parties but rather errors by the Department in not providing services and by the trial court determining that they were not required.	Father (by counsel)	16.1-283 (C)(2)	Father argued that the circuit court erred in finding that the Botetourt County DSS ("Department") could not provide services to father because he was subject to a protective order for the first year that his child was in foster care. The protective order was in place when the child entered foster care and expired twelve months later. The protective order permitted father visitation with the child at a visitation and exchange center. The subsequent JDR court order transferring custody of the child to the Department provided for visitation between father and child at the discretion of the Department. Despite the temporary nature of the protective order and the possibility of visitation under the protective order and custody order, the evidence established that the Department offered no services to father and facilitated no visitation with the child. The Department proceeded on the grounds that the protective order rendered father unreachable and exempted the Department from offering any services to father. The circuit court's finding that the Department could not offer father services was based on the protective order in place against father. As in Cain and Ferguson regarding the mere fact of incarceration as a crime, the Court of Appeals rejects a per se rule that a protective order alone satisfies the evidentiary requirement of proving that the Department argued that it was "not required to force its services upon an unwilling or disinterested parent," however the record showed father demonstrated interest in the child. When the Department provided no services to father, there was no way of knowing whether he would have been willing or interested in receiving services. Accordingly, because the Department provided no services to father, there was no way of knowing whether he would have been reversed and the case remanded to allow father an opportunity to show what progress he can make with the assistance of the Department and other agencies.

Circuit Court, however, had found that " (father) was unavailable to provide a stable home for and could not 'wait another six months or 60 days to figure it out'." Court of Appeals confirms that Circuit Court must find on clear and convincing evidence " that (i) {termination} is in the best interests of the child and (ii) DHS met its burden of proving the requirements of subsection (C) (2)". The question presented to the Court of Appeals had not previously been considered. In sum, how could the non-offending parent "'remedy the conditions which led to or required continuation of the child's foster care placement' if he was not the cause of those conditions or living in the home when the conditions occurred?" Court of Appeals reversed Circuit Court's decision on the basis of facts failing to establish termination by Clear and Convincing Evidence and entered final judgment for the father.

Patricia Tackett v. Arlington Co. DHS – 1519-12-4; Delores O'Brien Heffernan v. Arlington Co. DHS – 1471-12-4; Delores O'Brien Heffernan v. Arlington Co. DHS – 1520-12-4	Affirmed (Published opinion by Judge Robert J. Humphreys) 8-13-13	Mother (by counsel)	16.1-266 (A) (E) (F); 16.1-283 (A)(1) (C)(1) (C)(2) (G); Rule 5A:18; 16.1-241 (A) and 16.1- 244; 16.1-278.2; 16.1- 282.1; Rule 5A:20	 These three cases were consolidated on appeal because assignments of error were interrelated, and the factual background was common to all three cases. A.O. was in the custody of her grandmother who had been given legal guardianship of her by a 2005 Maryland court order. A.O. first came to the attention of Arlington DHS in early 2009, and her grandmother was offered services before she disappeared with the child. A.O. was located in July 2010 when she was caught shoplifting, and grandmother was charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor. A.O. was placed in foster care. Thereafter, services were offered to and declined by the mother and were again offered to grandmother who failed to cooperate with the court's directives and Arlington DHS assistance, all of which were aimed at returning the child to grandmother's custody. A.O. was almost 13 years of age at the time of the Circuit Court trials of the TPR petition and the grandmother's pro se custody petition. She testified that she desired to live with her mother and grandmother. A variety of legal issues were raised by the parties - 1. Denial of counsel for A.O. in addition to her GAL 2. A.O.'s age of discretion to object to the TPR 3. Sufficiency of evidence for mother's TPR 4. Due Process Claims 5. Grandmother's Guardianship 7. The No Contact Order on mother and grandmother until the child turns 18 years of age 8. Alleged errors by the court regarding grandmother's custody petition 9. A variety of other errors claimed by the grandmother 7. The Court of Appeals upholds the TPR and the denial of custody to the grandmother

Christopher Farrell v. Warren Co. DSS – 2282- 10-4; Christopher Farrell v. Warren Co. DSS – 2283-10-4; Christopher Farrell v. Warren Co. DSS – 2284-10-4	Affirmed (Published opinion by Judge Rossie D. Alston, Jr.) 1-10-12	Father (by counsel)	16.1-283 (B)	Mother and Father appeal Termination of Parental Rights (TPR) in separate cases. These opinions provide instructive detail on the court process in child welfare cases from the outset of case. Numerous Assignments of Error regarding the Circuit Court's decisions are denied on appeal. Decisions of Trial Court are affirmed. Cases involve removal and return of children followed by a 2 nd removal. After second removal, DSS moved to TPR without providing additional services to the parents. Issues raised and decided on appeal include due process and Constitutional challenges to relevant Virginia Statutes, challenges to the manner in which the trial court heard the underlying child welfare cases, DSS refusal to provide services prior to TPR, the burden of proof required at different points of the cases, required court findings, procedural errors on appeal, the ability to terminate the parental rights to children who are "at risk" of abuse and neglect, sufficiency of evidence, conflicting evidence, expert testimony, parental substance abuse and domestic violence, and mother's failure to obtain prenatal care.
Dawn Farrell v. Warren Co. DSS; 1872-10-4	Affirmed (Published opinion by Judge Rossie D. Alston, Jr.) 1-10-12	Mother (by counsel)	16.1-283 (B)	For a summary on the case, please see "Notes" for Christopher Farrell v. Warren Co. DSS (2282-10-4, 2283-10-4 and 2284-10-4), under Cases Involving a Parent's Denial of OR Failure to Correct Problems; OR Failure to Make the Child's Needs a Priority.
Fauquier Co. DSS v. Bethanee Ridgeway – 2490-10-4; Bethanee Ridgeway v. Fauquier Co. DSS – 2550-10-4	Affirmed (Published opinion by Judge Sam W. Coleman, III) 12-6-11	Mother (by counsel)	16.1-283 (C)	Court terminates parental rights (TPR) of mother to two older children but denies TPR of two younger children. Mother had met many DSS requirements for return of children but not all. Oldest children had special needs that mother was unable to address thus TPR was appropriate for them. Her inability to parent a child with special needs does not infer that she cannot parent all children. As two younger children were not as impacted by father's acts as were older children, court concluded they were less of a parenting challenge. No evidence was presented to the court of mother's ability to parent less than four children. Therefore, there was not a sufficient factual basis to TPR the youngest two children. Court found that it was important to preserve the parent-child relationship and protect the child's best interest.

	CASE			DF OR FAILURE TO CORRECT PROBLEMS; CHILD'S NEEDS A PRIORITY
Case No.	Disposition	Parent (rights at stake)	Code § or Rule	Notes
Russell Kilby v. Culpeper Co. DSS; 0446-09-4	Affirmed (Published opinion by Judge William G. Petty) 10-27-09	Father (by counsel)	16.1-283 (C)	Father appeals Termination of Parental Rights based on his being convicted of "an offense that constituted felony assault resulting in serious bodily injury or felony sexual assault of the child." DSS moved to TPR as parents, after learning of sexual abuse by son, failed to correct actions of son that lead to further abuse of daughter. Father claims a distinction that his conviction arose from "acts of omission" rather than affirmative acts. The Court of Appeals rejects that argument. Facts also support finding of "serious bodily injury" to child victim. Father also claims denial of "Due Process" because " trial court did not specifically adjudicate him to be an unfit parent." Argument rejected on basis of "once the [trial] court finds [the factors in Code 16.1-283] are present, it need not make a further finding of parental unfitness."
Akers v. Fauquier Co. DSS; 0182-04-4	Affirmed (Published opinion by Frank) 11-9-04	Mother (by counsel)	16.1-283 (C)	Mother argued that DSS discontinued services after the foster care plan change of goal to adoption and that hindered her efforts to reunify with her child. The court found that DSS was not required to provide services after the goal was changed to adoption. Code § 16.1-283(G) does not establish a standard for admitting child testimony. The proper standard is whether the child is "competent." The court did not err in considering the child's preference but relied on evidence presented.
C.S. v. Virginia Beach DSS; 3156-02-1	Reversed & remanded (Published opinion by McClanahan) 09- 30-03	Mother (by court- appointed counsel)	16.1-283 (C)(2)	Evidence is insufficient to terminate parental rights where appellant has substantially remedied, within 12 months, conditions that led to child's foster care placement. Appellant complied with a psychological evaluation and individual therapy, provided adequate furnishings for the child at issue and her other children, and met the requirements of the initial foster care service plan with the goal of returning the children to her home. Appellant is not required to comply with certain conditions that DSS did not make reasonable and appropriate efforts to provide. Prior to DSS intervention, mother was employed, had her own apartment, was not on welfare, and neither she nor any of the children were on antidepressants. Appellant's therapist described the behavior of DSS as "adversarial and judgmental and almost to the point of intimidating," and the guardian ad litem said the motives of DSS in this case were "disingenuous."

Toms v. Hanover DSS; 1869-04-2	Affirmed (Published opinion by Kelsey) 8-09-05	Father (by counsel)	16.1-283 (B)	Termination of parental rights affirmed finding no arguments persuasive. § 16.1-B merely requires the court to "take into consideration the efforts made to rehabilitate parent." This 1998 amendment gives DSS initial discretion to abstain from reunification if it deems it to be inconsistent with the health and safety of the children. Evidence was presented that Ms. Toms went to a neighbor's home to state she was being held against her will and abused by her husband. Their 8 children ran into the woods when police arrived. The home was not habitable and full of trash and empty alcohol containers. The children had not received health care, education, social skills, or speech skills. Psychological testing revealed father suffered from delusional episodes, social phobias, paranoia, obsessive-compulsive disorder, depression, severe anxiety, and avoidant personality features. He had been abusing alcohol since 6 years old. Appellate court found no abuse of discretion with trial courts ruling that the father could not within a reasonable amount of time remedy the conditions placing the children into foster care.

	CASES IN WHICH A PARENT'S MENTAL HEALTH, MENTAL ILLNESS OR LIMITED INTELLECTUAL FUNCTIONING IS A FACTOR
Case No.	Disposition	Parent (rights at stake)	Code § or Rule	Notes
City of Newport News DSS v. Winslow; 2631-02- 1	Reversed and remanded (Published opinion by Humphreys) 5-20-03	Mother (by court- appointed counsel)	16.1-283 (B), (C)(2)	Winslow, who has bi-polar disorder and obsessive-compulsive personality disorder, refused to accept responsibility for the extremely poor condition of her home and resulting danger to her children. However, trial court failed to make factual findings required by § 16.1-283(C), the section under which DSS sought termination of parental rights. The judge's findings concerning the initial threat to the children's "life, health [and] development" and prospective determination that it was "not reasonably likely that" Winslow could substantially remedy those conditions pertinent to § 16.1-283(B) but not to § 16.1-283(C).
Richmond DSS v. L.P.; 1737-00-2	Reversed (Published opinion by Clements) 5-29-01	Mother (by court- appointed counsel)	16.1-283 (C)(2)	A mental deficiency that is of such severity that there is no reasonable expectation that the parent will be able, within a reasonable period of time befitting the child's best interests to undertake responsibility for the care needed by the child, does not constitute good cause for the parent's inability to timely cure the circumstances that led to the child's foster care placement. The mother was cooperative with services.

L.G. v. Amherst Co. DSS; 2443-02-3	Reversed and remanded (Published opinion by Coleman) 6-10-03	Mother (by court- appointed counsel)	16.1-283 (C)(2)	Appellant with background of sexual abuse was 13 years old when she gave birth to child. Child was removed from custody and placed in foster care in November 1999 based on finding of neglect. Evidence showed appellant was placed in successive homes or facilities due to unacceptable behavior and/or problems with her caretakers and had exhibited irresponsible and unstable behavior and total lack of commitment to properly parenting her child. However, trial court erred in refusing to consider significant relevant evidence, including testimony of counselors concerning the "tremendous" and "remarkable" progress appellant made in her education, social skills, and life skills, and her maturation into a responsible young adult from November 2000 to date of de novo hearing. The time limit given in § 16.1-283(C)(2) does not "temporally restrict the trial court's consideration to events that occurred only during that discrete 12-month time period to the exclusion of what may have occurred before and after those dates." Case remanded to trial court to consider appellant's progress, not only during 21-month period prior to de novo hearing but also through the time of the remand hearing.

Bristol DSS v. Maggie S.	Affirmed in	Mother (by	16.1-283 (C)(1) (C) (2)	DSS and GAL appeal denial of TPR. Arguments raised include the trial court's delaying
Welch – 0532-14-3;	part and dismissed in	counsel)		its decision, ignoring the statutory time frame for the parent to remedy conditions that led to foster care, and failing to protect the best interests of the child. DSS removed

Welch – 0558-14-3	G. Petty) 11-4-14			child for a period of over a year and then ordered the child returned to the mother. DSS had filed motions asking court to make a decision on TPR for this child during the above time frame. Court of Appeals determines that delay issue is moot as trial court made a decision. There is extensive discussion on the law regarding child's best interests and the broad authority that courts have. Trial court must find by clear and convincing evidence that termination is in the best interest of the child and that the parent has not maintained a relationship with the child or remedied conditions that led to the foster care placement. Proving one of the two is not sufficient to overcome the rights of parents.
Haugen v. Shenandoah	Reversed and	Mother and	Continuation	Termination of parental rights reversed. The Supreme Court of Virginia held that the

				Dissent: The continuance issue was not preserved properly for appeal and therefore the appeal should be dismissed.

		CASES IN	WHICH INCARCERA	TION OF THE PARENT IS AN ISSUE
Case No.	Disposition	Parent (rights at stake)	Code § or Rule	Notes
Richmond DSS v. Crawley; 1220-05-2	Affirmed (Published opinion by Benton) 1-31-06	Mother (by court appointed counsel)	16.1-283 (C)	Appellate court affirms that DSS did not prove with clear and convincing evidence that terminating mother's rights were in the children's best interests. DSS argues that evidence of mother's unstable housing, criminal acts, unemployment, and the children's inappropriate behaviors upon entering into foster care; establish termination criteria. Trial court concluded that mother's "desperate poverty, hospitalization, and marital circumstances precipitated the children's placement into foster care." At time of circuit court hearing mother was incarcerated and had approx. 9 months remaining on her active sentence of 2 years and 2 months. Mother calls the children almost daily and has participated in jail's substance abuse program. Court found that mother's continued contact with her children and her positive relationship with them afford her the opportunity to remedy the housing and parenting situation upon her release from incarceration.
Harrison v. Tazewell Co. DSS; 0897-03-3	Affirmed (Published opinion by Humphreys) 01-06-04	Father (by court- appointed counsel)	16.1-283 (C)	Termination of parental rights is upheld where father of Down's Syndrome child had long history of drug use, sold and used drugs from his home and allowed minors to use drugs in his home while the child was present, was incarcerated for various drug offenses including cocaine distribution, and will not be released from prison until just before child turns 18. Father refused to take advantage of services offered by DSS prior to his incarceration. Trial court acknowledged father's love for child – he had maintained primary custody of child from 1993 to 1999 and wrote to her once a week from prison – but child had made great strides in her education and basic living skills while in foster care. There was no evidence that breaking bond with father would jeopardize child's emotional and/or physical well-being.

		CASE	S INVOLVING DUTY TO	D INVESTIGATE RELATIVES
			PUBLISHED	OPINIONS
Case No.	Disposition	Parent (rights at stake)	Code § or Rule	Notes
Katrina Bagley v. Richmond DSS; 1251-11-2	Affirmed (Published opinion by Judge D. Arthur Kelsey) 1-31-12	Mother (by counsel)	16.1-283 (A)	Sole argument on appeal is the claim that RDSS failed to consider granting custody of child to Mr. and Mrs. Davis, who were put forward as "relatives" of the child. RDSS asserts that Davis' are not "relatives" under the law. "Under common law, a relative means someone related by consanguinity or affinity. Consanguinity is a 'relation by blood' Affinity, on the other hand, 'is the relation of one spouse to the other spouse's kindred' To this common law definition of relative, Virginia statutes add children legally adopted." Davis' were not related by marriage or adoption nor by blood and are, therefore, not "relatives" under VA Code 16.1-283 (A) and as a matter of law.

DSS - 2284-10- 4	Affirmed (Published opinion by Judge Rossie D. Alston, Jr.) 1-10-12	Father (by counsel)	16.1-283 (B)	For a summary on the case, please see "Notes" for Christopher Farrell v. Warren Co. DSS (2282-10-4, 2283-10-4 and 2284-10-4), under Cases Involving A PARENT'S DENIAL OF OR FAILURE TO CORRECT PROBLEMS; OR FAILURE TO MAKE THE CHILD'S NEEDS A PRIORITY.
Dawn Farrell v. Warren Co. DSS; 1872-10-4	Affirmed (Published opinion by Judge Rossie D. Alston, Jr.) 1-10-12	Mother (by counsel)	16.1-283 (B)	For a summary on the case, please see "Notes" for Christopher Farrell v. Warren Co. DSS (2282-10-4, 2283-10-4 and 2284-10-4), under Cases Involving a Parent's Denial of OR Failure to Correct Problems; OR Failure to Make the Child's Needs a Priority.
Lynchburg DSS v. James Cook, et. al; 071964	Reversed and remanded (Published opinion by G. Steven Agee) 9-12-08	Father (by counsel)	16.1-278.2 (A1); 16.1- 281 (C1); 16.1-282 (D1) and 16.1-282.1 (A1)	Trial court and Court of Appeals erred in awarding custody of subject child to maternal grandparents without first meeting the finding requirements of § 16.1- 278.2(A1). Virginia Supreme Court determines that it was error to find that the general 'best interests oFdue [rpcessf the child' determination required under §§ 20- 124.2 and 20-124.3 supersedes and replaces the findings required under the foster care statutes, when a § 16.1-241 (A3) custody petition is before the court. Foster care statutes are not "subordinate" to the general custody and visitation provisions of Title 20. Where there are competing petitions for custody and foster care before the court, the trial court must make the four findings required under § 16.1- 278.2(A1) based on a preponderance of the evidence, before it can enter "any order transferring custody of the child to a relative other than the child's prior family."

		CASE	S INVOLVING DUTY	TO INVESTIGATE RELATIVES
Case No.	Disposition	Parent (rights at stake)	Code § or Rule	Notes
Debra J. Hawthorne and Daniel H. Hawthorne v. Smyth Co. DSS; 1309-99-3	Affirmed, (Published opinion by Annunziata) 8-01-00	Mother and Father (by same counsel)	16.1-283 (A)	Trial court erred in holding that the 1998 revision to Code § 16.1-283 (A) eliminated the duty of DSS to investigate placing the child with a relative before appellants' parental rights were terminated. "The [1998] amendment simply makes clear that termination proceedings and concomitant placements short of adoption may proceed in the absence of DSS' identification of an adoptive family." However, the error is harmless. Case law "requires that the court 'give a consideration to granting custody to relatives of the child' prior to terminating parental rights and placing the child in the custody of social services." The statute requires two orders issued at the same time: one with regard to the termination of parental rights, and the other, custody. An investigation of relatives is relevant to the entry of both of these orders. However, where the trial court is presented with evidence for its consideration as to the suitability of placing the child with relatives before ordering the termination of parental rights, the requirement that the Department investigate relatives prior to termination is satisfied. (Parents' problems: alcohol abuse, domestic violence, inadequate supervision and parenting skills, irregular employment and unstable home.)

Adam Yafi v. Stafford Co. DSS; 0529-18-4	Affirmed (Published opinion by Judge Robert J. Humphreys) 11-27-18	Father (by counsel)	16.1-283 (E)(iii); 16.1-283 (E)(iv)	Child Y.Y. found at home by Deputy Sheriff with multiple severe injuries that are further recognized by medical personnel at two hospitals. Later exam also indicates significant mental health and psychological injuries. Also, in home is a second child L.Y. who did not appear to be injured. Subsequent to CPS incident father of the children attempts suicide and is hospitalized. After in depth investigation and multiple inconsistent stories from Y.Y.'s stepmother, who is also mother of L.Y., it is determined that she failed to protect the child Y.Y. from the father or obtain medical treatment after he had been injured. Y.Y. was placed in custody of his mother. Father of Y.Y. charged with Malicious Wounding and Child Abuse. Father and Stepmother enter Alford Pleas to criminal charges regarding Y.Y. Circuit Court decision that services for reunification of both children not required due to the nature of the injuries to Y.Y. and convictions of father and stepmother is affirmed by Court of Appeals.
Braulio M. Castillo v. Loudoun City DFS; 1499- 17-4	Affirmed (Published opinion by Judge Glen A. Huff) 4-3-18	Father (by counsel)	16.1-283 (B); 16.1- 283 (E)(ii)	On appeal, appellant challenges certain of the circuit court's evidentiary rulings; the circuit court's decision to consider the abuse and neglect issue during the same proceeding as the termination issue; its decision to hold evidence open pending the final sentencing order in appellant's criminal trial; and the sufficiency of the evidence to support both the abuse and neglect and termination rulings. Appellant was convicted in death of the mother of the children. A variety of evidentiary issues were raised by appellant during trial and in 10 assignments of error on appeal. Court finds no error, harmless error, or decisions within the trial court's discretion with regard to trial court rulings on: Former Testimony Exception - Waiver of Attorney Client Privilege - Evidence admitted for limited purpose - Consideration of Relative Placements - Holding Evidence Open - Holding Combined Hearings.
Russell Kilby v. Culpeper Co. DSS; 0446-09-4	Affirmed (Published opinion by Judge William G. Petty) 10-27-09	Father (by counsel)	16.1-283 (E)	Father appeals Termination of Parental Rights based on his being convicted of "an offense that constituted felony assault resulting in serious bodily injury or felony sexual assault of the child." DSS moved to TPR as parents, after learning of sexual abuse by son, failed to correct actions of son that lead to further abuse of daughter. Father claims a distinction that his conviction arose from "acts of omission" rather than affirmative acts. The Court of Appeals rejects that argument. Facts also support finding of "serious bodily injury" to child victim. Father also claims denial of "Due Process" because " trial court did not specifically adjudicate him to be an unfit parent." Argument rejected on basis of "once the [trial] court finds [the factors in Code § 16.1-283] are present, it need not make a further finding of parental unfitness."

	CASES I			IMSTANCES, PRIOR TERMINATION OF RIGHTS, OR CERTAIN CRIMINAL OFFENSES
Fields v. Dinwiddie Co. DSS; 1716-04-2	Affirmed (Published opinion by Overton) 6-21-05	Mother (by court- appointed counsel)	16.1-283 (E) (i)	Termination of parental rights upheld. Mother's rights were terminated by trial court under §§ 16.1-283(C)(2) and 16.1-283(E)(i). On appeal appellant raised insufficiency arguments solely on § 16.1-283(C)(2). Mother made no objection to termination based on § 16.1-283(E)(i) and the record supports that she did have her rights previously terminated when her now adult child, was six years old. Appellate court noted mother's severe life- long mental illness, her inability to care for self or her child, and her inability to bond with her child, when affirming that the child's best interest required termination of parental rights. Mother initially believed she became pregnant by eating a tomato seed. Appellant court ruled that mental health letters admitted by DSS were inadmissible hearsay. However, decision of trial court is not reversed because there was other admissible evidence in the record that clearly established the evidence required for termination.
Brown V. Spotsylvania; 1961-03-2	Affirmed (Published opinion by Annunziata) 6-08-04	Father (by court- appointed counsel)	16.1-281 (B)(3); 40.1-103 and 16.1-283 (A)	 Evidence in the record that clearly established the evidence required for termination. DSS was relieved of its duty to make reasonable efforts to reunite appellant with his son after appellant was convicted of felony child abuse of another child (not related to appellant) in his home. The court found the term "felony assault" as used in Code § 16.1-281(B)(3) to mean "any felonious crime that results in serious bodily injury to a child of the parent or a child who lives with the parent," including crimes other than common law assault that result in serious bodily injury. The record also shows that DSS did not fail to meet the statutory requirement to investigate relatives as possible placements for the child.
Fields v. Dinwiddie Co. DSS; 0230-03-2	Affirmed (Published opinion by Elder) 07-22-03	Mother (by court- appointed counsel)	5A:6(a), (d); 16.1-283 (E)(iii)	 Failure to comply with Rule 5A:6(d)'s provisions regarding the contents of the certificate of the notice of appeal is not jurisdictional: appellant's failure to certify that she mailed or delivered a copy of the notice of appeal to the children's guardian ad litem does not necessarily compel that her case be dismissed. The cover letter accompanying the notice of appeal, signed by appellant's guardian ad litem, provided sufficient information so as to satisfy the requirements of Rule 5A:6(a). Evidence showed appellant's prison sentence and probation conditions upon release made it unlikely that she would be able to resume her parental responsibilities in the near future and termination of her parental rights served the children's best interests. Her federal conviction for "abusive sexual contact" constituted a conviction for "felony sexual assault" as the term is used in § 16.1-283(E)(iii) and may be used as a predicate for termination of parental rights once trial court entered the final order, regardless of her right to appeal. Thus, trial court did not err in denying appellant's motion for a continuance pending her appeal of the federal conviction.

Arguments raised include the trial court's delaying its decision, ignoring the statutory time frame for the parent to remedy conditions that led to foster care, and failing to protect the best interests of the child. DSS removed the child who is subject to this appeal along with four other children in the care of appellee. Two of those four were also her biological children. Trial court terminated her parental rights to those two biological children but withheld its decision as to this child for a period of over a year and then ordered the child returned to the mother. DSS had filed motions asking court to make a decision on TPR for this child during the above time frame. Court of Appeals determines that delay issue is moot as trial court made a decision. There is extensive discussion on the law regarding child's best interests and the broad authority that courts have. Trial court must find by clear and convincing evidence that termination is in the best interest of the child and that the parent has not maintained a relationship with the child or remedied conditions that led to the foster care placement. Proving one of the two is not sufficient to overcome the rights of parents.
Dinwiddie DSS v. Renee Bagley Nunnally, et al. – 1947-12-2, 1948-12-2, 1949-12-2	Affirmed (Published opinion by Justice Millette) 10-31-14	Mother and father (by separate counsel)	25 U.S.C. §§ 1901- 1963	This is an affirmation of a decision regarding the interpretation of the Indian Child Welfare Act (ICWA) from an unpublished opinion of the Court of Appeals in case numbers 1947-12- 2, 1948-12-2, and 1949-12-2. See that opinion and the opinion of Justice Millette for more details. The issue decided had to do with the request to transfer these cases at the trial level to a tribal court. The Court of Appeals overturned the trial court decision to keep the cases in the state court and the Supreme Court of Virginia affirmed the decision of the Court of Appeals.

Jordan Heath Joyce v. Botetourt Co. DSS; 0736- 22-3	Reversed, vacated, and remanded (Published opinion by Judge Robert J. Humphreys) 11-9-22 Note: This is not about procedural errors by the parties but rather errors by the Department in not providing services and by the trial court determining that they were not required.	Father (by counsel)	16.1-283 (C)(2)	Father argued that the circuit court erred in finding that the Botetourt County DSS ("Department") could not provide services to father because he was subject to a protective order for the first year that his child was in foster care. The protective order was in place when the child entered foster care and expired twelve months later. The protective order permitted father visitation with the child at a visitation and exchange center. The subsequent JDR court order transferring custody of the child to the Department provided for visitation between father and child at the discretion of the Department. Despite the temporary nature of the protective order and the possibility of visitation under the protective order and custody order, the evidence established that the Department offered no services to father and facilitated no visitation with the child. The Department proceeded on the grounds that the protective order rendered father unreachable and exempted the Department from offering any services to father. The circuit court's finding that the Department of Appeals rejects a per serule that a protective order alone satisfies the evidentiary requirement of proving that the Department offered "reasonable and appropriate" services in accordordance with the termination of parental rights statute (Code § 16.1-283(C)(2)). On appeal, the Department argued that it was "not required to force its services upon an unwilling or disinterested parent," however the record showed father demonstrated interest in the child. When the Department provided no services to father, there was no way of knowing whether he would have been willing or interested in receiving services. Accordingly, because the Department provided no services to father, there order terminating his parental rights has been reversed and the case remanded to allow father an opportunity to show what progress he can make with the assistance of the Court history notes that Mother's request to be transported to Virginia through a writ of habeas corpus was denied. Mother's phone conference began at 9:26a.m. and ended at 3:49p.m. The circuit court denied her motion for continuance and proceeded to hear from two more witnesses before legal argument. In reversing the TPR decision the opFrelatinion notes that termination renders parents a legal stranger to their child. Dissent: The continuance issue was not preserved properly for appeal and therefore the appeal should be dismissed.

Less drastic sanctions would have served the purpose of punishing the mother for her noncompliance without short-circuiting the legal process and depriving mother of her day in court on the merits of the case. While the pretrial orders were intended to promote the orderly administration of justice, a trial date was never set despite the requirement to hold a hearing on the merits of a Code § 16.1-183 case within 90 days of the perfecting of the appeal. The record does not substantiate DS argument that the trial court considered recommendations of the GAL and CPS history before making its findings. "the record is devoid of any indication that the guardian ad litem presented testimony, a report, or recommendations to the trial court, other than[concurring] with the court's ultimate rulings."

Najera v. Chesapeake DSS; 1714-05-1	Dismissed (Published opinion by Judge Kelsey) 5-23-06	Father (by court appointed counsel)		Appellant appeals the approval of the foster care plan recommending termination of parental rights and adoption. However, appellant's unappealed JDR order terminating his parental rights has rendered moot the question whether DSS' foster care plan should have recommended termination.

			PROCEDURAL	ERRORS BY APPELLANT
Case No.	Disposition	Parent (rights at stake)	Code § or Rule	Notes
Watkins v. Fairfax Co. DSS; 1938-03-4	Dismissed (Published opinion by Humphreys) 4-13-04	Mother (by court- appointed counsel)	5A:6; 5A:3	Appeal was not properly perfected because appellant failed to name the guardian ad litem , an "indispensable" or "necessary" party, in her notice of appeal and accompanying certificate of service within the 30-day mandatory filing period. The Court of Appeals does not have the requisite jurisdiction over an indispensable party not named in the notice of appeal or certificate of service.
Hughes v. York Co. DSS; 1642-00-1	Dismissed (Published opinion by Overton) 7-03-01	Mother (by counsel)	5A:6; 5A:19	An appellate court cannot adjudicate an appeal unless all necessary parties are before the court, which include those whose interests are likely to be defeated or diminished by a successful appeal. The guardian ad litem representing the child is an indispensable party to the appeal of the final decree terminating parental rights. The definition of appellee in Rule 5A:1 includes any indispensable party to the appeal. In this case, the guardian ad litem constituted an appellee and "opposing counsel" for purposes of Rules 5A:6 and 5A:19. When the appellant failed to provide the guardian ad litem for the two subject children with a copy of the notice of the appeal and the opening brief, a necessary party was not made a party to the appeal and the appeal is dismissed.

Keith Boatright v. Wise Co. DSS – 0789-14-3	Affirmed (Published opinion by Judge Glen A. Huff) 11-12-14	Father (by counsel)	16.1-281 and -283	The basis of this decision involves several procedural issues raised by the appellant at the trial court regarding continuances, entrustment agreements, time within which the circuit court heard an appeal from JDR court and filing a foster care plan seeking termination prior to filing a petition to terminate parental rights. The Court of Appeals found the trial court complied with the law regarding each of these issues and affirmed the termination of parental rights.

Betty Leona (Anderson) (Ritchie) Layne v. Donald Lee Layne – 2175-11-3	Affirmed (Published opinion by Judge Jere M.H. Willis, Jr.) 10-23-12	Mother and father (by separate court appointed counsel)	20-124.1; 5A:18; 16.1-283; 20-121.1	This is not a child welfare case but a dispute involving child custody, visitation and support as between biological parents. However, the Court finds that § 16.1-283 governs termination of parental rights, and parents may not, as between themselves, agree to terminate one parent's rights as to custody and visitation and obligations concerning support. Such agreements are void and against public policy.

Dawn Farrell v. Warren Co. DSS; 1872-10-4	Affirmed (Published opinion by Judge Rossie D. Alston, Jr.) 1-10-12	Mother (by counsel)	16.1-283 (B)	For a summary on the case, please see "Notes" for Christopher Farrell v. Warren Co. DSS (2282-10-4, 2283-10-4 and 2284-10-4), under Cases Involving A PARENT'S DENIAL OF OR FAILURE TO CORRECT PROBLEMS; OR FAILURE TO MAKE THE CHILD'S NEEDS A PRIORITY.
Fauquier Co. DSS v. Bethanee Ridgeway; Bethanee Ridgeway v. Fauquier Co. DSS; 2490- 10-4 & 2550-10-4	Affirmed (Published opinion by Judge Sam W. Coleman, III) 12-6-11	Mother (by counsel)	16.1-283 (C)	Court terminates parental rights (TPR) of mother to two older children but denies TPR of two younger children. Mother had met many DSS requirements for return of children but not all. Oldest children had special needs that mother was unable to address thus TPR was appropriate for them. Her inability to parent a child with special needs does not infer that she cannot parent all children. As two younger children were not as impacted by father's acts as were older children, court concluded they were less of a parenting challenge. No evidence was presented to the court of mother's ability to parent less than four children. Therefore, there was not a sufficient factual basis to TPR the youngest two children. Court found that it was important to preserve the parent-child relationship and protect the child's best interest.
Lucretia Putnam Copeland v. Leslie Todd; 100929	Affirmed, in part, and reversed, in part (Published opinion by Lemons) 9-16-11	Mother (by court appointed counsel)	63.2-1202 (H); 63.2-1203-1205	The facts of this case and the focus of most of the legal issues raised are important but ar not related to child welfare. They deal with custody and adoption issues under Code §§ 63.2-1202 and -1205. Ms. Todd, however, raises an equal protection of the law argument claiming that " an adoption initiated by a private party under Code § 63.2-1205 does no receive the same protections for the child or its natural parents as an adoptionunder Code § 16.1-283." The Supreme Court of Virginia denies this claim, as "adoption under Code section 16.1-283, where children are in the custody of the state and parental rights are in jeopardy of being terminated under Virginia's foster care statutes," is different from the facts of this case where Ms. Todd had "voluntarily relinquished custody of the child." She, therefore, "is not similarly situated to a person whose parental rights are involuntarily terminated by the state under Code § 16.1-283" and her equal protection claim fails.

Adam Yafi v. Stafford Co. DSS; 0529-18-4	Affirmed (Published opinion by Judge Robert J. Humphreys) 11-27-18	Father (by counsel)	16.1-283 (E)(iii); 16.1-283 (E)(iv)	Child Y.Y. found at home by Deputy Sheriff with multiple severe injuries that are further recognized by medical personnel at two hospitals. Later exam also indicates significant mental health and psychological injuries. Also, in home is a second child L.Y. who did not appear to be injured. Subsequent to CPS incident father of the children attempts suicide and is hospitalized. After in depth investigation and multiple inconsistent stories from Y.Y.'s stepmother, who is also mother of L.Y., it is determined that she failed to protect the child Y.Y. from the father or obtain medical treatment after he had been injured. Y.Y. was placed in custody of his mother. Father of Y.Y. charged with Malicious Wounding and Child Abuse. Father and Stepmother enter Alford Pleas to criminal charges regarding Y.Y. Circuit Court decision that services for reunification of both children not required due to the nature of the injuries to Y.Y. and convictions of father and stepmother is affirmed by Court of Appeals.
Braulio M. Castillo v. Loudoun City DFS; 1499- 17-4	Affirmed (Published opinion by Judge Glen A. Huff) 4-3-18	Father (by counsel)	16.1-283 (B); 16.1- 283 (E)(ii)	On appeal, appellant challenges certain of the circuit court's evidentiary rulings; the circuit court's decision to consider the abuse and neglect issue during the same proceeding as the termination issue; its decision to hold evidence open pending the final sentencing order in appellant's criminal trial; and the sufficiency of the evidence to support both the abuse and neglect and termination rulings. Appellant was convicted in death of the mother of the children. A variety of evidentiary issues were raised by appellant during trial and in 10 assignments of error on appeal. Court finds no error, harmless error, or decisions within the trial court's discretion with regard to trial court rulings on: Former Testimony Exception - Waiver of Attorney Client Privilege - Evidence admitted for limited purpose - Consideration of Relative Placements - Holding Evidence Open - Holding Combined Hearings.

Bristol DSS v. Maggie S. Welch – 0532-14-3; Patricia E. Smith, Guardian Ad Litem for minor child v. Maggie S. Welch – 0558-14-3	Affirmed in part and dismissed in part (Published opinion by Judge William G. Petty) 11-4-14	Mother (by counsel)	16.1-283 (C)(1) (C) (2)	DSS and GAL appeal denial of TPR. Arguments raised include the trial court's delaying its decision, ignoring the statutory time frame for the parent to remedy conditions that led to foster care, and failing to protect the best interests of the child. DSS removed the child who is subject to this appeal along with four other children in the care of appellee. Two of those four were also her biological children. Trial court terminated her parental rights to those two biological children but withheld its decision as to this child for a period of over a year and then ordered the child returned to the mother. DSS had filed motions asking court to make a decision on TPR for this child during the above time frame. Court of Appeals determines that delay issue is moot as trial court made a decision. There is extensive discussion on the law regarding child's best interests and the broad authority that courts have. Trial court must find by clear and convincing evidence that termination is in the best interest of the child and that the parent has not maintained a relationship with the child or remedied conditions that led to the foster care placement. Proving one of the two is not sufficient to overcome the rights of parents.
Dung Thi Thach and Carlos Mendoza v. Arlington Co. DHS – 1309- 13-4	Affirmed in part and reversed and final judgement in part (Published opinion by Judge Robert J. Humphreys) 3-18-14	Mother & Father (by counsel)	16.1-283 (C)(2)	Appeal of TPR of non-offending parent who is in the U.S. in violation of immigration laws. He complies belatedly with all agency program requests. Court of Appeals finds that " after (mother) moved out, DHS did not find any indication that it was an inappropriate place for children or anything but a loving and familial environment." Circuit Court, however, had found that " (father) was unavailable to provide a stable home for and could not 'wait another six months or 60 days to figure it out'." Court of Appeals confirms that Circuit Court must find on clear and convincing evidence " that (i) {termination} is in the best interests of the child and (ii) DHS met its burden of proving the requirements of subsection (C) (2)". The question presented to the Court of Appeals had not previously been considered. In sum, how could the non-offending parent "'remedy the conditions which led to or required continuation of the child's foster care placement' if he was not the cause of those conditions or living in the home when the conditions occurred?" Court of Appeals reversed Circuit Court's decision on the basis of facts failing to establish termination by Clear and Convincing Evidence and entered final judgment for the father.
Katrina Bagley v. Richmond DSS; 1251-11-2	Affirmed (Published opinion by Judge D. Arthur Kelsey) 1-31-12	Mother (by counsel)	16.1-283 (A)	Sole argument on appeal is the claim that RDSS failed to consider granting custody of child to Mr. and Mrs. Davis, who were put forward as "relatives" of the child. RDSS asserts that Davis' are not "relatives" under the law. "Under common law, a relative means someone related by consanguinity or affinity. Consanguinity is a 'relation by blood' Affinity, on the other hand, 'is the relation of one spouse to the other spouse's kindred' To this common law definition of relative, Virginia statutes add children legally adopted." Davis' were not related by marriage or adoption nor by blood and are, therefore, not "relatives" under VA Code 16.1-283 (A) and as a matter of law.

varren Co. DSS - 2282- 10-4; Christopher Farrell v. Warren Co. DSS - 2283- 10-4; Christopher Farrell v. Warren Co. DSS - 2284- 10-4	Affirmed Published opinion by udge Rossie D. Alston, Jr.) L-10-12	Father (by counsel)	16.1-283 (B)	Mother and Father appeal Termination of Parental Rights (TPR) in separate cases. These opinions provide instructive detail on the court process in child welfare cases from the outset of case. Numerous Assignments of Error regarding the Circuit Court's decisions are denied on appeal. Decisions of Trial Court are affirmed. Cases involve removal and return of children followed by a 2nd removal. After second removal, DSS moved to TPR without providing additional services to the parents. Issues raised and decided on appeal include due process and Constitutional challenges to relevant Virginia Statutes, challenges to the manner in which the trial court heard the underlying child welfare cases, DSS refusal to provide services prior to TPR, the burden of proof required at different points of the cases, required court findings, procedural errors on appeal, the ability to terminate the parental rights to children who are "at risk" of abuse and neglect, sufficiency of evidence, conflicting evidence, expert testimony, parental substance abuse and domestic violence, and mother's failure to obtain prenatal care.

Warren Co. DSS (2282-10-4, 2283-10-4 and 2284-10-4), under Cases Involving a Parent's Denial of or Failure to Correct Problems; or Failure to Make the Child's Needs a Priority.
Fauquier Co. DSS v. At Bethanee Ridgeway - Ol 2490-10-4; Bethanee Ju Ridgeway v. Fauguier Co	Affirmed Published opinion by udge Sam W. Coleman, III) 12-6-11	Mother (by counsel)	16.1-283 (C)	Court terminates parental rights (TPR) of mother to two older children but denies TPR of two younger children. Mother had met many DSS requirements for return of children but not all. Oldest children had special needs that mother was unable to address thus TPR was appropriate for them. Her inability to parent a child with special needs does not infer that she cannot parent all children. As two younger children were not as impacted by father's acts as were older children, court concluded they were less of a parenting challenge. No evidence was presented to the court of mother's ability to parent less than four children. Therefore, there was not a sufficient factual basis to TPR the youngest two children. Court found that it was important to preserve the parent-child relationship and protect the child's best interest.

Dinwiddie DSS v. Renee Bagley Nunnally, et al. – 1947-12-2, 1948-12-2, 1949-12-2	Affirmed (Published opinion by Justice Millette) 10-31-14	Mother and father (by separate counsel)	25 U.S.C. §§ 1901- 1963	This is an affirmation of a decision regarding the interpretation of the Indian Child Welfare Act (ICWA) from an unpublished opinion of the Court of Appeals in case numbers 1947-12- 2, 1948-12-2, and 1949-12-2. See that opinion and the opinion of Justice Millette for more details. The issue decided had to do with the request to transfer these cases at the trial level to a tribal court. The Court of Appeals overturned the trial court decision to keep the cases in the state court and the Supreme Court of Virginia affirmed the decision of the Court of Appeals.
Tyrus H. Thompson and Ja'Ree C. Thompson v. Fairfax Co. DFS - 2185-12- 4; Jasmine Vanderplas v. Fairfax Co. DFS – 2216- 12-4; Minh-Sang Nguyen v. Fairfax Co.DFS – 2217-12- 4; Nancy J. Martin, as Guardian Ad Litem for the minor child v. Fairfax Co. DFS	Reversed and remanded (Published opinion by Judge Stephen R. McCullough) 9-10-13	Mother and father (by separate counsel)	25 U.S.C. §§ 1901- 1963	In a wide-ranging opinion deciding issues arising under the Indian Child Welfare Act (ICWA), the Court of Appeals remanded a termination of parental rights case to the Circuit Court to determine if the proceeding should be transferred to a tribal court. The Court held: 1) they would not adopt the Existing Indian Family Exception, which limits application of ICWA only to Indian children who are being removed from an existing Indian family. The Court adopted what appears to be the majority view amongst the states that this exception is clearly at odds with the clear language of ICWA and Congress' clearly stated intent to protect Indian children and tribes in general. 2) a party opposing transfer must establish good cause to deny the transfer by clear and convincing evidence; under ICWA, a state court must transfer a case to a tribal court if requested, unless a) either parent objects, b) the tribal court declines the transfer, or c) the state court finds "good cause to the contrary." 3) The tribal court can exercise jurisdiction over an Indian child's non-Indian parent, thus the claim it cannot is not a ground to deny the transfer. 4) The best interest of the child is not grounds to deny transfer; however, good cause exists if an opposing party can show by clear and convincing evidence that transfer would cause, or present a substantial risk of, immediate serious emotional or physical damage to the child. The damage must flow directly from the transfer itself; as otherwise, Congress has deemed the tribal court fully capable of deciding what is best for the child. Further good cause to not transfer does not exist if the tribal court agrees to maintain status quo until the case is decided, as then the transfer itself will not harm the child. 5) Seeking transfer at an advanced stage might be good cause but seeking transfer weeks before a de novo termination trial in Circuit Court is not an advanced stage. Further, the failure to the tribe to seek transfer or to intervene in foster care placement proceedings for mo proceeding, as these are separate proceedings, and the tribe might reasonably not see a need to intervene until termination becomes an issue.
